Winning snap is a mist opportunity

Talented young photographers were honoured on Saturday for their snaps of Richmond Park.

The Friends of Richmond Park organised the competition to encourage youngsters to explore the park, and winners in three age groups attended the ceremony at Pembroke Lodge.

Gemma Driskell was the under-sevens' winner with her photograph of a rabbit, called Peep.

Miles Shacklady won the seven-to-11 category with his image, Firework Burst, while William Kaufhold scooped the 12-to-18s' prize with his photograph above, Winter Mist.

First patients visit specialist centre

by DAVID LINDSELL

dlindeall@london.newsquest.co.uk

Years of hard work, fundraising and community spirit came to fruition this week, when Kingston Hospital's specialist cancer unit finally opened.

The Sir William Rous unit quietly started taking patients on Tuesday, after more than a year of building work, with services provided by Kingston Hospital, Macmillan Cancer Support and the Royal Marsden.

The centre will provide mammography and ultrasound clinics, chemotherapy and advice for people living with cancer.

An official opening ceremony will take place at the end of July.

Carole Heatley, chief executive at Kingston Hospital, said: "Our shared vision is to deliver the best specialist services from a first-class facility, here at Kingston Hospital, to our local patients."

"Building and equipping the unit was made possible through the fundraising of Kingston Can. I would like to extend a huge thank you to everyone who donated to the appeal."

"Through your generosity, the appeal raised £3m. The fundraising was also supported by a donation of £1.4m from the Royal Marsden, and £630,000 from Macmillan Cancer Support."

Cally Palmer, chief executive of the Royal Marsden NHS Foundation Trust, said: "This is a unique partnership that will ultimately benefit cancer patients."

"Together with Kingston, we identified a local need and we are now providing services that fulfil that need."

"It is particularly important for patients as they will be able to have their chemotherapy treatment closer to home; the more care we can provide locally, the better."

Stephen Richards, Macmillan's regional director for the south-east, said: "When you're living with cancer, having the right kind of information and support at the right time is essential."

"It can help you make informed choices about your treatment and care, and take away some of the uncertainty and fear, so you feel more in control."

"We're very pleased to be working with Kingston Hospital and the Royal Marsden to provide an all round excellent service for local people affected by cancer."

The unit is named after former military man Sir William Rous, who was chairman of Kingston Hospital from December 1996 and was a cancer patient before his death in 1999.

The day the music died

by KERRY GROVE

kgrove@london.newsquest.co.uk

The streets of Surbiton will be a little less musical this year, after the Maple Road street party was cancelled due to a lack of funding.

Organisers needed £12,000 from the Community Development Fund and a £28,000 grant from the Arts Council but were knocked back on both occasions.

The Arts Council said the "sheer volume of worthy causes" meant the award-winning party must do without.

Surbiton resident Nathan Erasmus, 26, put in 200 hours of unpaid work to get the party started and had already provisionally booked bands, organised roles for volunteers and arranged for a stage to be built.

He said: "The Government thinks Surbiton is a well-off area so it's not on the agenda when it comes to hand-outs. There is a need for something like this in this area but unfortunately it's not to be."

"People hardly know their neighbours in Surbiton when they are commuting up to town every day."

"There's not really a sense of community and I just wanted to do something that's non-exclusive that different people can attend."

The free "Let the music speak" party attracted more than 2,000 visitors when it ran for the first time last July.

The total cost came to £15,000, from various grants, donations and selling advertising in the programme.

This year it was moved back from June 21 to July 26 to allow more time to raise funds but organisers have now lost all hope.

Two Kingston University students also used £900 of their own money to build the stage for the event, which will no longer be used in Surbiton.

Landscape architecture student Adam Harris, 26, said: "We were going to get grants and claim it back but that's not able to happen any more so we are coming out of university with no money in our pockets."

Betting man: Paul Walker has put his council tax up as collateral in a speeding bet

Deadlinepix KT21294

'I'll bet my council tax you'll catch speeders'

A New Malden man is prepared to enter into a high stakes gamble with Kingston Council to stop cars travelling at more than twice the speed limit down his street.

Paul Walker moved into quiet Gainsborough Road about 18 months ago and was amazed to see cars rocketing down the 20mph limit road "as if it was a race track".

Concerned parents in the street, which has a children's centre and is used for school bicycle safety training session, have even started to keep their children indoors.

Mr Walker said: "I moved because I wanted a safe area for my family. Traffic in Wandsworth was heavier but controlled - here it's the Wild West. In over a year I haven't seen a single effort at speed enforcement. It's a disgrace."

Despite contacting the council in June and October last year, Mr Walker feels fobbed-off by officials, and has decided to bet Kingston Council his council tax bill that it would catch speeders if it set up traps.

He said: "If they monitored speeds in our road for a week they would easily record drivers travelling at double the speed limit every day."

"I've challenged the council to do the job we are paying it to do. If I'm wrong, I'll pay double my council tax - if I'm right, I will pay nothing."

Mr Walker has started an online petition at gopetition.com/online/19823

Police station revolution could see cop shops shut

by DAVID LINDSELL

dlindsell@london.newsquest.co.uk

The Metropolitan Police are quietly drawing up radical plans to re-deploy hundreds of officers, which could eventually see Kingston and Surbiton police stations sold off.

The days of walking into a large old-fashioned police station to report a crime would end, replaced with user-friendly counters in shopping centres, schools, hospitals, churches or council buildings.

Instead, the 301 officers, 62 staff and 74 community support officers would be split between smaller safer neighbourhood offices dealing with low-level crimes, backed up by teams in a giant warehouse on an industrial estate and a privately-run prison cell block shared with Richmond.

A consultation document on the asset management strategy, released on the Met Police website in November and withdrawn three months later, said Kingston police station was inadequate, inefficient and expensive to maintain with not enough parking spaces.

After new buildings are found the future use of the two main police stations in Kingston and Surbiton would be "considered", it said.

A spokesman for Kingston police said: "No police stations in Kingston or London with front counters would be closed without another front counter service replacing it. Far from retreating from communities the plan is to roll out patrol bases to improve our service to the public by allowing officers to work in closer proximity to their ward."

"The fact is that many of our officers and staff continue to work from unsuitable and inadequate buildings that simply do not meet the needs of policing London in the 21st century. This is being improved by a rolling programme, which is being done with a high level of public consultation."

Kingston and Surbiton MP Edward Davey had not heard about November's "consultation".

He said: "I would be shocked and appalled and I would expect the new Mayor of London to reopen the whole issue."

"If this had been fully in the public domain we would have been aware of it."

"No one is against improvements if they are genuine and service to the public is improved."

"But one has to question if closing two police stations is the best way to do that."

Campaign's keen to keep watch on river

Despite running right through the capital, the wildlife of the River Thames is ignored, according to Royal Society for the Protection of Birds (RSPB), which has teamed up with the River Thames Guide for a new campaign.

ThamesWatch runs throughout June and is encouraging people to look more closely at the waterway's wildlife which includes kingfishers, gulls, waders and even seals.

RSPB spokesman Tim Webb said: "The mighty Thames is a wildlife magnet, attracting all sorts of fascinating birds and animals."

"Yet few, if any of us, pay it more than a passing glance. ThamesWatch aims to change that by encouraging people to really look at the river."

Dylan paints a different picture with exhibition

by DAVID LINDSELL

dlindsell@london.newsquest.co.uk

You may have known him as the rebellious, defining musical voice of his generation, but the times they are a-changin'.

A collection of limited-edition graphics based on Bob Dylan's sketches and paintings will be unveiled in the Artisan Gallery, Fife Road, Kingston, on Saturday and the legendary singer's songs are already being piped through the building to prime potential buyers.

The Drawn Blank Series is based on drawings and sketches made by Dylan while on the road from 1989 to 1992 and will be one of the first times his artwork will be shown in this country.

The watercolour and gouache paintings were created by Dylan during 2007 and are said to "visually echo" the stylistic hallmarks of Dylan's prose, poetry and music.

Samantha Jackson, marketing director of Washington Green Fine Art Publishing, which is providing the paintings, said: "This is an incredible and unique opportunity to view and acquire a limited edition graphic from the critically acclaimed body of work by Bob Dylan."

"For those people lucky enough to buy one of his graphics they will not only own a magnificent piece of art, but also a little piece of history. 'The art not only gives us an insight into the soul and imagination of Dylan the artist, but also Dylan the man."

"We are incredibly proud to launch this unique collection of limited edition graphics in the UK."

Prices start at £1,000 and, unfortunately for aficionados, Dylan, who perhaps presciently wrote a song called When I Paint My Masterpiece in 1971, will not visit the gallery. Artisan Gallery is open from 9.30am to 6pm.

For more information, call 020 8974 5855 or visit artisan.galleries.com

CASE STUDY 1 Emma Lohmeier

Emma Lohmeier's son Max faces a trip to an independent school in Ham, after missing out on all three of his choices, despite places becoming available at nearby Alexandra Infant School with the decision to add a 30-strong "bulge" class.

She said: "There are now people who live much further away who will get into our local school, which we didn't apply for because we understood it would mostly be siblings of children already going there who would get in."

"We've already explored the independent route, and we've found a German school we might send our little boy to but we're still waiting until everyone has accepted places in this latest round, waiting for the 'shake-down' the council keeps saying will come."

"I'm absolutely horrified there are still children without places – the council keeps harping on about sticking to the original criteria but all I know is there are people now with two school offers and other people with none."

"They should have managed it totally differently, said 'hands up, we've made a mistake' and let everybody know what was going on."

Will our schools be able to cope?

As Kingston's primary school places decade rumbles on, parents' fears are moving slowly from whether their child will get a place in September to what kind of strain the 212 unexpected extra pupils will put on the system.

Despite last Wednesday's announcement from Kingston Council that seven primary schools in the area had agreed to take on "bulge" classes to alleviate the crisis, there were still concerns the overspill would damage standards of learning.

With only 12 weeks to go until the new school year begins, 67 children are still waiting to find out where they will be taught, although the council has guaranteed all the unplanned children will have a school place come September.

Rachel Hollis, headteacher of Alexandra Infant School, said her staff were very positive about taking on an extra 30 pupils in September, despite the situation coming as "a surprise".

She said: "When we were told about the situation we did wonder how it had happened, but this is a community school and those people living in the community should be able to come here."

by MIKE DIDYMUS

mdidymus@london.newsquest.co.uk

"We'd already planned an additional classroom which we've got a planning application in for, which we planned in order that we could provide our extended services."

"The plan is we're going to use that to accommodate the extra children, although we're still in consultation with the council and may still have to have a temporary classroom."

Of the other schools receiving extra pupils, Lovelace Primary School has existing accommodation which can be used, while the other five will be provided with temporary classrooms.

Concerned parents have the chance to grill council officials over their handling of the crisis at Kingston Guildhall from 7.30pm tonight.

CASE STUDY 2 Helen Blackley

Mum Helen Blackley was one of the lucky ones to receive an offer of one of their three choices at the first round, but is now worried about how overspill at her school will affect the way her son Adam learns.

She said: "When they told me we'd got Christ Church I felt like a whole load had been lifted from my mind. We're really pleased, but I've got concerns about how the new pupils are going to fit in with the other two classes."

"They only have so many computers and books in the library and it's all set up for a lower number of pupils."

Mrs Blackley was critical of the council's handling of the crisis, questioning why the process was not made public at the end of January when the majority of applications were received.

She said: "The council drove me absolutely mad because their plan seemed to be that there was no problem – it was a 'freak of nature' and that's what was most frustrating, just having to sit tight."

"Primary is more important than secondary because it's where children learn to read, write and count. It's the foundation for everything else."

Uni awards volunteers

by DAVID LINDSELL

dlindsell@london.newsquest.co.uk

Kingston University's finest volunteers have been rewarded for their tireless work helping others.

More than 300 Kingston University students have given 7,000 hours of their time to worthwhile projects during the past year and were honoured at the university's recent volunteer awards.

Students did everything from clearing rubbish out of the Hogsmill River to running French classes at Age Concern centres.

The award for best newcomer went to 18-year-old Leon Morgan, who ran football coaching sessions.

David Shanahan-Wiley was commended for having given his time to more than 10 different projects while studying.

Also praised were Rhiannon Lewis, who mentors vulnerable pupils in Tolworth, and Mei Li, a Korean interpreter for Refugee Action Kingston.

Gurdeep Punihani scooped her award for volunteering as a front-counter worker with the Metropolitan Police, while Talal Noumeh acted as an appropriate adult with Kingston Advocacy Group.

Aduu Joba won project of the year for an eight-week language class, teaching the Oromo language and culture to children of east-African origin.

Jackie Petersen was recognised for her work at Xpression, a Men-cap-affiliated youth club, where she is a deputy leader.

The university's deputy vice-chancellor Professor Mary Stuart said: "Student volunteers are a fantastic asset to both the university and the community. The awards evening was a wonderful way to celebrate the volunteers' commitment and achievements."

Pupils tour with Shakespeare

Pupils from the Mount Primary School has been taking the works of Shakespeare to schools across the area.

They have been performing a scene from A Midsummer Night's Dream, in which Titania, queen of the fairies, is woken up from her sleep by Bottom, whose head has been turned into an ass's.

Child actors between the ages of eight and 11 visited Green Lane, Corpus Christi, Christ Church, Malden Manor and St Paul's primary schools.

Teacher Caroline Gupta said: "I was inspired by Malden Manor's contribution to the annual Kingston Council primary schools' reading and performing arts festival a couple of years ago, when they performed a scene from Macbeth."

"It got me thinking and this tour is the result."

Bankers hunt for charity treasure

A treasure hunt in Kingston organised by the Royal Bank of Scotland raised over £1,000 for a children's charity. More than 100 people including bankers, solicitors and accountants took part in the quest, which stopped off at several pubs on the way. The cash will go to the Children's Trust.

Magistrates' scheme celebrates success

A scheme trying to recruit more black and ethnic minority magistrates celebrated its success at Westminster last week.

Courts from across London, including Kingston Magistrates' Court, took part in a shadow scheme and a celebratory reception for graduates was held by MP Jack Straw on June 2.

The scheme was organised by Operation Black Vote and Ministry of Justice.

Baljit Rihal, a shadow at Kingston Magistrates' Court, spent six months observing court sessions and working with magistrates to understand sentencing decisions.

He said: "I have applied to become a magistrate and would encourage others to go confidently in the direction of your dreams and live the life you have imagined."

Looking for recruits: Magistrate Linda Hacker, Jack Straw MP and Baljit Rihal at Westminster

'Smug' attackers of student are convicted

Two young women have been convicted for assaulting a female student after asking her for a lighter.

Kareem Collins, 21, and Charlotte Field, 18, pushed Ceri Prosser "backwards and forwards like a ball" and then punched her in the head after she fell to the floor, Kingston Magistrates' Court heard on June 6.

Alexandra Boshell, prosecuting, said the assault happened outside the Works nightclub in St James Road at about 3am on January 12.

Miss Prosser, a student at Thames Valley University, had been celebrating a friend's birthday in the nightclub when she was set upon by Collins and Field, both from Coombe Road, Kingston.

She was walking from a kebab shop to meet friends when, the court heard, the attackers, sitting on a bench, started yelling abuse after she told them she did not have a light.

She said: "I didn't want any trouble - I was trying to walk away. I remember someone coming up behind me and I started to turn around."

Miss Prosser had cuts to her head and hand from the attack and sustained bruising to her face.

Mitigating, Klentiana Mahmutaj accused Miss Prosser of simply falling over but the victim's friend Kerry Holleran gave evidence that she witnessed the attack after the girls called Ceri a "fat cow".

She said: "The girls turned on us and that's when it turned into violence. They were pushing Ceri to and from between them like a ball. I tried to intervene but I was useless, I couldn't do anything."

"The girls were really smug, like they had won a competition."

Collins and Field were found guilty of assault and will be sentenced on June 12.

Drunk man tried to avoid parking fine

A student has been fined after getting caught by police drunkenly trying to move his car to avoid a parking ticket.

Nehal Patel, 20, had parked his car at his girlfriend's house in Wheatfield Way, Kingston, on April 15 and went to a town centre nightclub, Kingston Magistrates' Court heard on June 9.

After realising there were parking restrictions in place, Patel, of Chapel Farm Road, New Eltham, attempted to drive to Penryhn Road but was spotted by police "staggering" before getting into the vehicle at 3am. A breath test revealed he had 96mg of alcohol in 100ml of blood. The legal limit is 80.

Magistrate Ms Karmel said: "This could have been a very serious incident - you were not fit to drive."

Patel was fined £235 for drink-driving and was disqualified for 12 months.

Radio show is green for go

Kingston Green Radio has been hailed a success after 10 days on the air.

The radio station was organised as part of this year's Paint the Town Green festival, which ended on Thursday, June 5 - World Environment Day.

Kingston Green Radio broadcast 24 hours a day and hosted specialist speakers, including Kingston Guardian editor Sean Duggan, discussion and music.

Organiser Sam Hermitage, said: "It has been a fantastic experience and we have had a real mix of guest speakers coming in to talk about local green issues."

"We are certainly talking about having another station for next year's festival."

Challenging conventions: Line Hansen is one of the students exhibiting work at Kingston University's degree show

Deadlinepix KT20565

Arty students set for exhibition

Undergraduates from Kingston University are showcasing their work at the annual degree show this week.

Students from the schools of fine art, 3D design, communication design, architecture and landscape and art and design history are exhibiting at the Knights Park Campus.

The show, which opened on June 7, is open to the public and runs until June 13.

Dr Simon Ofield, dean of the faculty of art, design and architecture, said: "The work on display at the degree show demonstrates the very special character of art, design and architecture education at Kingston, clearly demonstrating that our students are ready to challenge conventions and realise their potential to improve the world – locally, nationally and internationally."

Redevelopment info fight is on

by DAVID LINDSELL

d.lindsell@london.newsquest.co.uk

Heritage campaigners are fighting for more information about the demolition and redevelopment of a massive part of Kingston town centre.

Kingston Council has narrowed down its shortlist of potential contractors for the Eden Quarter and handed them a list detailing what it is looking for.

Last year, the council had to dump its initial partner Hammerson, after it failed to follow EU rules on hiring developers.

Retired architect Brian Godding, vice-chairman of the Kingston Society, said the society was anxious about the "secrecy" involved in the project and wanted to see the brief given to developers.

He said: "We are gravely suspicious. We didn't like the original scheme, which Hammerson did, which knocked down Marks and Spencer and drove a two-lane road through it.

"We have, from the beginning, made it clear that we can see no point in demolishing established shops and a pleasant shopping precinct, which was relatively recently completed, and even more recently refurbished, in order to replace them with something more glamorous."

The society also wants to know how much money was wasted, on top of the £450,000 handed back to Hammerson, when the council was forced to halt initial negotiations.

The successful proposal for the site will include shops, leisure facilities, flats and offices, as well as community facilities, a new bus station and car parking.

A spokesman for the council said the procurement process was confidential.

He said: "Once the procurement process has been completed and a preferred developer has been appointed we will be able to provide details and they will be in a position to consult on any future redevelopments of the area."

A final decision on the council's preferred developer will be made in the first week of September.

Swedish shop opens its doors

A Swedish childrenswear shop flung open its doors last week at the launch of its store in the Bentall Centre.

Polarn O Pyret opened on June 5 and, in keeping with the town's Paint the Town Green festival, showed off its range of organic clothing.

Managing director Mats Nilsson, said: "We hope that parents and gift buyers in Kingston will appreciate the Polarn O Pyret concept, and that we will see many children having fun in our clothing for several generations to come."

Yachts of fun

Crews from Minima Yacht Club took to the waves at the weekend, racing along the River Thames in the Merlin dinghy open.

Competitors from the Kingston club sailed down the river at high speed into a northerly wind, rounding Kingston Bridge while spectators lined the riverside to watch.

Mike Stephens from Tamesis club, in Teddington, won the first of the three races in his vintage boat, and was in with a shout of taking the second race and gathering the honours for the day.

But when his rudder broke, Alan Markham of Upper Thames, near High Wycombe, swept past, also taking the final race and the prize for the day.

Dads and sons can row to win

Father and son teams can battle it out at a row-off at the Bentall Centre next week.

To celebrate Father's Day, teams will have one minute on a rowing machine on June 15.

The pair which gets furthest will win a six-month membership to Virgin Active and a flying adventure trip.

Compost waste for a greener environment

Now is a great time to get out in the garden and enjoy the sunshine. It is also a great time to take up home composting.

From Oscar-winning actress Dame Helen Mirren to TV presenter Chris Evans, millions of us are doing it.

There are many excellent reasons for composting at home, but many people are simply unaware that this is one of the easiest ways they can help the environment in their own daily life.

Each year, two wheelbarrow loads full of organic waste are produced for every man, woman and child in England.

That's enough organic waste annually to fill the Royal Albert Hall more than 400 times over. This waste can be recycled in to nutrient-rich compost for use for all manner of plants in gardens up and down the country.

It is not just garden trimmings that can be composted. A staggering one third of a household's waste can be composted at home, and that can make a huge difference to the amount of waste which is sent to landfill sites each year.

When organic waste is sent to landfill it gets buried under other waste and decomposes without oxygen, producing a powerful greenhouse gas, methane. However, when the same waste is composted at home it breaks down with oxygen and no methane is emitted.

By composting at home you also cut down on the amount of energy used annually on transporting domestic waste to landfill sites all over the country, and get free fertiliser for use on plants and gardens.

All you need to get started composting at home is a compost bin – discounted bins are available from recyclenow.com/compost.

Just input your postcode to see which compost bins are available in your area.

Once you've purchased a bin, you need to site it somewhere easily accessible in the garden, preferably directly on the earth so worms can find their way into the bin.

Filling up the bin is simple. Many people who already home compost are unaware of the variety of items that can be recycled by home composting.

Uncooked fruit and veg peelings from the kitchen can go straight into the compost bin, as well as dead flowers and plant prunings.

In order to create a balanced compost, you need to ensure that you mix these 'greens' with equal amounts of fibrous 'browns' like scrunched up cereal boxes, insides of toilet rolls or shredded paper.

bin, it would be worth getting a composting caddy for your home.

You can use the caddy to store up biodegradable household waste such as vegetable peelings, but you need only empty it into your compost bin when it is convenient.

You can buy compost caddies from many retailers and the Recycle Now website, or alternatively you can just use an old ice-cream tub.

Home compost is a product that will help your garden and the environment as a whole – putting valuable nutrients back into the soil and helping gardens to look healthier and more beautiful.

For tips on how to use your finished compost, check out recyclenow.com/compost.

It takes between six and nine months to produce your own compost – so if you can't wait that long, peat-free and peat-reduced composts (also made from recycled green materials), are another great ingredient for your garden and are available from most garden centres.

These are competitively priced, great for the garden, providing the key nutrients that plants need to thrive, and great for the environment as they divert garden waste from landfill sites.

Developers will save station parking spots

Developers planning to build 250 homes on Surbiton station's car park have promised they will not take away much-needed parking spaces if building goes ahead.

An underground or multi-storey car park underneath the block of flats was suggested by developers Bewley Homes as the most likely option.

In a planning brief published in 2004, Kingston Council insisted that all of the 460 parking spaces must be kept if it was to give the plans the go-ahead.

Surbiton councillor Barry O'Ma-

by KERRY GROVE

kgrove@london.newsquest.co.uk

hony said the council would ask for at least 50 per cent of the flats to be for social housing and a contribution to be paid to local schools.

"It has always been a site that has ticked all the boxes for development," he said. "It has been encouraged in council policy since 2004, if not before.

"It would be disruptive during construction but it is at the back of the station, not the front."

He expects to see a planning application for a five storey building to be made later this year, but neither Bewley Homes or Network Rail would be drawn on an exact date.

Colin Brooks, chairman of Bewley Homes, said a revamp of Surbiton station was likely to be part of the deal with Network Rail, but he did not yet know if it will buy or lease the land from them.

After Mr Brooks was criticised for a lack of public consultation by Conservative councillors, he promised both rail users and residents would be asked their opinion before an application was made.

Eco-warriors: St John's pupils get their green message across

Pupils spell out environmental message

Eco-warriors at St John's Primary School in Kingston spent a day learning about litter last week for World Environment Day.

The Portland Road school, winners of the Green Guardian award for best green primary school two years in a row, celebrated the day on June 5 by combining art, design technology, drama and music.

Each class foraged for materials from the bin and the day included creating an eco slogan, writing poetry, creating costumes and singing.

Some of the slogans created by the children included "don't be a waste of space, put your litter in its place" and "if no one picked it up, what then?"

Ain't no mountain high enough: Jo Tralls is raising cash by trekking in the Cuban mountains

Mother on the march to help her sick son

by DAVID LINDSELL

dlinde@london.newsquest.co.uk

Trekking through the mountains of Cuba which once hid insurgent rebels plotting a communist revolution, a mother-of-two's thoughts will be on someone special closer to home.

Jo Tralls will take part in a British Heart Foundation (BHF) world experience trip this November to raise money for the charity.

Her youngest son Curt, a 24-year-old former baker who is now training to be a plasterer, has a heart condition called coarctation – a narrowing of the arteries for which he is due vital heart surgery.

She said: "I want to get to Cuba before it all changes and there's no better way to do it.

"I can have an unforgettable experience and keep healthy, while raising money for such a great cause."

When Jo hit 50, two years ago, she wanted a lifestyle change and escaped her husband of 28 years George, 75, for a few days to trek along the Inca Trail to Machu Picchu. She said: "The kids were grown up and it was time to concentrate on me. Peru dropped through my door and everything fell into place.

"I was out of shape and didn't have a clue how to raise the money."

Since the Peru trip, Jo has been to Mount Sinai and Cuba is next on the list.

The Kingston mother, who works as a carer and befriender for elderly people, was hooked and the following year went to Mount Sinai. Celebrity antiques dealer Stewart Hofgartner, her brother, will hold a fun antiques quiz at Tiffin School on July 2.

She will also be at Kingston station on July 25, fundraising in her BHF red t-shirt.

The stigma surrounding mental illness is not only felt by patients – it also has a profound effect on those who look after them. CHLOE LAMBERT reports

Ensure your own life

Nothing can quite prepare you for the task of caring for someone with a mental health problem.

After the shock of their diagnosis, taking on responsibility for them can be even more daunting – given mental health issues are often outside your experience.

Christine, a carer from Wandsworth, says: "You're plunged into a completely new world which is totally different."

"It is like when you get back from hospital with your new born baby and you're terrified and you don't know what to do."

"Being a carer, you don't know what the rules are and the person's behaviour can be quite bizarre and unpredictable."

The first thing to know is you are not alone.

There are an estimated 1.5m people in the UK caring for a relative or friend with a mental health problem, making up to 25 per cent of the estimated 6m carers in the UK.

The job of a mental health carer can cover a wide range of responsibilities. It might be motivating a person with depression to get out of bed in the morning, or being a shoulder to cry on. It could involve practical tasks, such as ensuring they are taking their medication correctly or taking them out to socialise, or helping them navigate the mental health system.

With landmark legislation such as the Carers Recognition Act 1995, carers now have more rights and acknowledgement than ever before.

Better communication about mental health issues, and more support for carers, means this demanding and often isolating job no longer has to be done single-handedly.

Mutual support groups run by organisations such as Rethink help to ease the burden.

Christine said: "You can talk frankly about rather nasty and unpleasant things, and you realise there are other people who have had the same experience. And you can read up about the condition. You start to get in control of things and you feel better."

You're not alone: Carers now have more rights than ever before

Mental health trusts are also working hard to form close and productive relationships with carers, so they are properly informed about how to handle unpredictable behaviour; how to get respite care and what services are available.

One issue specific to mental health carers is confidentiality.

If a patient discusses their symptoms with a doctor or mental health worker, legally they cannot disclose this to the carer unless the patient gives their permission. This can leave the carer feeling left in the dark and frustrated.

Christine says: "What is needed is a more helpful and more flexible approach from the mental health professional that protects the individual needs of both the service user and their carer."

If you are caring for a relative or friend, it can be hard to let go. But having a break is vital for the well-being of both the carer and the person they care for.

You can get advice on this through the mental health trust.

South West London and St George's NHS Mental Health Trust wants as many local people as possible to sign up as members when it becomes an NHS foundation trust.

Carers in particular will have a valuable contribution to make and expertise to share with the trust.

By becoming members, local people will be able to have a greater say in how the trust develops mental health services across south-west London.

Anyone who signs up to become a member during Carers Week (June 9 to 15) will be entered into a prize draw, with the chance of winning a day trip to Calais with SeaFrance, a family ticket to a Sea Life Centre or a week's gym pass at a local Cannons Health Club.

Businesses could save money and lift profile with £10 plan

by BEN THOMPSON

bthompson@london.newsquest.co.uk

For an investment of just £10, small companies across south London are saving both the environment and money.

The small fee allows environmental experts from southlondon.biz – the enterprise arm of Merton Chamber of Commerce – to produce a green action plan for businesses in Merton, Sutton, Kingston, Croydon or Wandsworth.

In only 14 months, this “Go Green” service has helped 470 organisations minimise their impact on the environment by recycling, reducing and reusing resources.

And to further its green mission, southlondon.biz is now sponsoring the Green Guardian’s business award.

Diana Sterck, chief executive of southlondon.biz and Merton Chamber of Commerce, said: “As businesses go green, they save money and massively raise their profile.

“Businesses are going to have to do this in the future. By using our service, it gives them a great kick start with minimum input.

“This is also why we have sponsored the Green Guardian business award. Businesses who have gone green deserve recognition so that they can show other organisations how to do the same.”

Go Green is funded by the London Development Agency (LDA) and helps businesses that would otherwise be unlikely to take advantage of Government-funded services.

New Malden insurance brokers Paradise Financial is one business to benefit. Its Go Green action plan resulted in enough LDA funding to purchase a new photocopier, printer and scanner.

David Kim, director of Paradise Financial, said: “Now we scan 90 per cent of our documents and everything is stored electronically on our IT system, saving storage space and providing a better working environment for all employees.

“We were used to handling about 5,000 pieces of paper a month and realised we seriously had to cut back.”

If you think your business could benefit from the Go Green service, contact southlondon.biz on 020 8944 5501.

Alternatively, email gogreen@southlondon.biz.

If you work in a businesses which is already reducing its environmental impact, put forward a Green Guardian business award nomination at www.greenguardian.co.uk

Eco-home shows ways to change

Challenge: Carlos Queremel, Kingston Council's community environment officer, inside the eco-home

An eco-home showing Kingstonians how they can reduce their ecological footprint rolled into New Malden last week as part of the Paint the Town Green festival.

Eco-doctors from Kingston Council's environment and sustainability team were on hand in New Malden High Street showing how simple steps around the home, such as turning down your thermostat and using energy saving lightbulbs, can make a big difference to the planet.

Carlos Queremel, community environment officer at Kingston Council, said: “We are challenging people to do more and act now for a better future.”

Chain reaction

Bike Week 2008 starts on Saturday, June 14, with a host of events to challenge people to ditch their cars, dump the television remote and get out and active.

Kingston Council has organised events from June 14 to 22, with a focus on promoting cycling to bring families together and help them reduce their carbon footprint.

The weekend's activities include a Dr Bike session outside Barclays in Kingston town centre from 11am to 3pm on June 14, where cyclists can ask questions and have a bike healthcare check.

On June 15 from noon to 3pm, there is a Father's Day walk, treasure hunt and health fair at St Paul's Church, Hook, and for the more energetic there is a bread pudding bike ride starting from Kingston's Market Place at 10am.

For more information, visit kingston.gov.uk, bikeweek.org or email cycling@rbk.kingston.gov.uk.

Top Tip

To save energy on your fridge, keep the temperature at two to three degrees celsius and the freezer at minus 15. Also ensure the fridge is not near a cooker or any other heat sources. Use old newspaper to fill gaps in the freezer when you are not storing much food – this improves efficiency.

The Big Picture

Reports of a world food crisis are increasing and several factors have come together to drive agricultural commodity prices up. Soaring oil and energy prices have pushed up the cost of food production dramatically in the last year. Fertiliser is up more than 70 per cent, fuel for tractors and farm machinery is up 30 per cent and pesticides, which depend on oil, are up about 20 per cent.

ECONews

BILL DEFEATED: A climate change amendment to the Government's planning bill has been defeated in the House of Commons. The amendment would have ensured that environmental considerations were taken into account during major works such as building roads, airports and power stations.

ORGANIC CLOBBER: A new children's shop in the Bentall Centre launched an organic clothing range last week. Polarn O Pyret is one of the first retailers in Europe to introduce cotton clothing for children which is organically and ethically produced from seedling to garment. The store opened on June 5.

SNEEZY DIESEL: According to tissue company Kleenex, diesel cars are adding to the hayfever hell many city dwellers experience each summer. Kleenex said diesel cars exacerbated the problem as the pollen binds to exhaust residues, which then is carried through the air into people's airways.

Each week we will ask a question on a green-related subject. This week:

Q. According to the Environment Agency, how much have sea levels risen by since 1900?

Last week's answer: Every time we overflow our kettle, enough energy is wasted to power 50 light bulbs.

Green Guardian is grateful to the following company for its generous sponsorship:

School places sums didn't add up

Seven schools will install temporary classrooms to cope with the demand for primary school places, Kingston Council said

The planners at the Council education department should have found out registered births four years ago. Then in view of so much residential development in Kingston and around found out year-by-year from statistics at GP practices and clinics numbers of children coming in to the area subsequently. They then would have arrived at a more realistic figure.

Big hotel gets the go-ahead

After years of waiting, wrangles with the developer and a desire to see a key riverside site developed properly, plans for a four-star hotel and eight-storey block of flats in Skerne Road, Kingston, have been given the green light.

Oh great. More traffic. More strain on the water system. More over-crowding. Clap... clap.

Ric, Kingston

Glad to see we are finally getting a four-star hotel in Kingston!

Amy Hart, Kingston

What a load of old cobblers. Where are all the cars going to park and how long are they going to be stuck in the one way system to get there. Yet another big block spoiling the view for locals – a really dull design too.

Tony, Surbiton

Great – just what we need; 256 more flats! Wait for more headlines when Kingston Council again get "taken by surprise" by the number of school places required. Time for some joined-up thinking by Kingston Council. Hmmm, somehow I don't think that's going to happen! Roll on 2010 when we have the opportunity to get rid of the Lib Dems.

Mark, North Kingston

Who should pay for faulty and dangerous bus exits?

Our association is extremely concerned that a number of local buses have faulty exits.

We have, for some time, been asking that the ramp mechanisms be repaired because of a design fault which allows the lip of the protective plate to stand proud of the bus floor, meaning that ordinary passengers tread on it, only to "ride it" into mid-air.

This ultimately means you can end up spread-eagled on the ground and potentially under the bus as it pulls away.

In addition, the whole ramp mechanism (Medi-Rampe) has, in many instances, dropped by two inches below the floor level, making them even more dangerous.

After continued pressure, we and London Travelwatch secured a site meeting with Transport for London (TfL) at Cromwell Road bus station in March, where they concurred that they needed fixing sooner rather than later.

Albeit it was unclear if TfL or the bus operator should pay for the repairs and modifications.

Since then, there has been no sign of repairs and add that the main problems can affect double-deckers on London United's 57, 65, 71, 111, 131 and 281.

'Supine support' has undermined council homes

Liberal Democrat Councillor Penny Shelton's letter, supposedly backing the Kingston Defend Council Housing campaign, but attacking the leaders of it, deserves an answer.

In the last attempt in 2004 to persuade Kingston's council tenants to vote to hand over their homes to the control of a so-called "social landlord" (ie a housing association or an arm's length management organisation), Liberal Democrat MPs Susan Kramer and Edward Davey both added their weight to the Liberal Democrat council's expensive propaganda campaign.

At that stage, they made no mention of the Government's 30 per cent tax on the housing revenue account.

In fact, they wholeheartedly supported the Labour government's proposals, which excluded any direct finance to the council for housing upgrades, maintenance and repairs.

They also did not oppose the previous Tory government's policy of giving council tenants the right to buy and the ban on new council house building.

These iniquitous policies have now come home to roost in the current housing crisis. More than ever there is a need for new council house building, with 6,000 on the local council's housing waiting list and 1,200 council tenants placed in expensive private landlord accommodation, a mortgage freeze, not to speak of bank repossessions.

Only publicly-owned housing can solve the problem, giving accountability to local councillors, controlled rents and secure tenancies.

Governmental housing policies, directed by the privatisation drive from the European Union, have been supinely supported by all three major political parties at national and local level.

If Rita Leech, Councillor Steve Mama, Kingston Trade Union Council and council tenants are prepared to fight to retain our precious housing stock and start council house building again, then more power to their collective elbows.

We need our waste service back the way it was: £35 per bag is too much for most borough residents

Recent letters of concern arising from the removal of garden waste service unless residents pay £35 per bag a year have encouraged me to express my opinions.

The Lib Dem Sutton Council was elected to serve in the mid-1980s and honoured their status on public opinions. Twenty years on with different councillors this has sadly been lost.

When I've spoken to older and younger residents with gardens they all agree they want the service back. It was an excellent garden waste service, especially when it was extended through autumn.

Many elderly residents cannot get to the recycling centre without a car and the bags are heavy. They need this service resumed, as £35 per bag is a lot of money out of a pension.

What if fly-tipping occurs across the borough? Householders with alleyways will need to be vigilant.

Recently we queued 40 minutes with about 30 cars at the recycling centre (many with garden waste). What happens to our carbon footprint when we sit in traffic jams emitting gases?

Surely the air was less polluted when one lorry came to collect our waste. We home compost, although laurel leaves cannot be composted.

If the black sacks put out on brown bin collection day are left uncollected we could have a public health problem. Unattractive streets and untidy gardens where rubbish is blown or dragged around by foxes isn't nice in our society. And what will happen at Christmas when we all have extra rubbish?

So come on Sutton Council please look in the archives of the mid-1980s and give residents back their services. The amount of council tax we all pay each month is like a second mortgage.

Things aren't so rosy for 'puritanical and philistine' members of the public

Your report about Sir Peter Hall's recent plea for even more public cash handouts for the Rose Theatre left out one crucial part of his comments.

In the original interview he labelled the British public "puritanical and philistine".

As a typical member of the puritanical and philistine masses, I recently went to the council's Guildhall to pay my monthly council tax bill.

I was shocked to discover that the cash desks have just been closed, with no prior announcement, so I had a wasted journey.

I was advised to pay at my nearest post office, which is not very helpful, as my local post office is one of those being shut down.

I have no doubt the loss of the cash-desks is yet another frontline council service being sacrificed on the altar of the Rose.

So the next time our local theatre-goers settle into their comfy seats to enjoy another dose of "culture", having parked their 4x4s in the newly renamed Rose car park, perhaps they might consider digging into their pockets a little deeper, instead of relying on the hard-pressed majority of philistines to continually cross-subsidise their pleasure.

They could even hand their cash directly to the council leader Councillor Derek Osbourne.

He could stand in the foyer with a collection tin, perhaps enabling him to revive his former acting career in the process.

NAME AND ADDRESS SUPPLIED

'Loutish morons' were great to race away from

I decided to cycle to Epsom on Saturday to attend the Derby. I'd never been before and heard you could watch the race for free, sitting on the hill by the track, and there was also much entertainment on offer.

On arriving, I couldn't believe my eyes. The place was full of loud, loutish morons and drunken yobs. Walking through the crowds was a horrendous experience. Are these really my countrymen?

And before I get any accusations of class snobbery, I'd like to point out that I'm a working class man myself. It's just that I'm well-mannered, and don't behave like a moron when I'm out.

Of course, not everyone was like that. But it seemed like there were a lot who were.

The great thing about cycling there was that I could whip past the traffic jams and get out of the area as quickly as possible. The race was good though.

Penguins on parade

Bona Shin is one of the founders of Theatre4All, an arts group which is running the second New Malden Arts Festival, showcasing art, photography, theatre, music – and a penguin parade. She spoke to ALITA HOWE

How did Theatre 4 All start?

We started by holding classical concerts in commercial venues in 2006. We are a group of five people who studied arts administration at Goldsmiths who wanted to bring free access to quality art to the public and let people enjoy the creativity of the arts.

What can people expect during the festival?

The theme is Our Beautiful Town. We contacted Malden Camera Club and they have compiled photographs of New Malden and images of green issues, which are being exhibited at 10 gallery venues including Tudor Williams and restaurants and cafés. There are also theatre and music events at Barton Green Theatre.

What do you hope the festival will achieve?

I think there is an invisible line between the arts and the community. So, we wanted to do something for the local community because there are not many cultural or artistic activities in New Malden.

You are going to stage a penguin parade. What is that about?

Going our way? Bona Shin and Minah Kim from Theatre4All

Deadlinepix CG0125

Global warming is a really serious problem so we wanted to see what art can do about it and take the issue to the public. Penguins are losing their homes because of global warming and so we are imagining them as real human beings – refugees – that are drifting around New Malden, which they have made their temporary home, with their suitcases.

The parade is a way of creating a bit of fun from this serious issue.

What is next for the festival?

We want to convert New Malden High Street into an arts venue like that of the Edinburgh Festival.

Our vision is national and international and an exhibit like the penguin parade could work elsewhere to highlight the issue of global warming.

□ New Malden Festival runs until June 22. The penguin parade is on Saturday, June 14, and starts from St George's Square at 1pm.

Igloo building will take place on the same day from 11am and everyone is welcome to bring along a four pint empty milk cartons to help build the igloo.

Creasing up

“I have played cricket all my life so it's something I know well. It was a case of transferring that to the page”

Playwright
Richard Bean

The English public's fascination with village cricket comes under the microscope when Richard Bean's thought-provoking comedy The English Game strides to the crease at the Rose next week.

A gentle nudge at the political and social make-up of British society, using a lazy Sunday afternoon encounter between London amateur sides as a backdrop, the play seeks to dig a little deeper into the nation's psyche.

And for London-based writer Bean, the subject matter is close to his heart: “There are two types of play you can write about.

THEATRE: The English Game, Rose Theatre

Simon Fitzjohn

You can write about what you know or you can research something.

“I have played cricket all my life so it's something I know well. I have always been fascinated by the game and it was a case of transferring that to the page.”

Having donned the whites for Hull Grammar School, and more recently the New Calypsonians in the Middlesex League, Bean clearly has a love for the game.

And he admits the characters who grace the local parks were ripe for the stage: “There is something quite deep about people looking for the opportunity to be perfect and shine.

“In the amateur game, where people are usually useless, there are still moments of brilliance.

“It is the experience of that brief moment, where you play a textbook cover drive for example, where you feel like a god and absolutely perfect.”

Bean's play covers love, politics and interpretations of the LBW law. And the content may prove controversial to some: “It would be wrong to say it is a play about cricket and nothing else.

“The topics are what I consider to be the faults in modern society. It used to be class, then race, and now culture.

“At the end of the day, the play is a bit of revenge on the game as, thanks to the fact I have no cartilage in my knee, it has ruined my life!”

Emily heads West

Way Out West head honcho Emily Saunders switches the desk for the stage next week when she makes a welcome return to the line-up, writes Simon Fitzjohn.

Saunders grabs the mic as she prepares to enter the studio later this year. But her rise to vocal prominence almost came by accident. She explains: “I trained as a clarinettist at Birmingham Conservatoire but was asked to sing at my own concert.

“The voice simply took over – people would say, ‘Sing another one,’ and it grew from there.

“I wanted to focus on my voice and have been working on that since.”

The Brixton-born singer showed her nous when recruiting Robbie Robson (trumpet), John Turville (piano), Larry Bartley (bass) and Graham Fox (drums) to provide her backing. But she insists her days as a multi-faceted musician are behind her.

She adds: “I do not want to be a jack of all trades – I want to master my voice.

“I do not sing in a jazzy style. I have my own sound which is very instrumental. I would describe it as an Eartha Kitt style with an Ella Fitzgerald sound.

“I see the voice as an instrument.”

Films What's on this week

PRICELESS (HORS DE PRIX) (12A): Diamonds are a girl's best friend – followed by designer heels and haute cuisine – in this breezy romantic comedy set in the sun-kissed playgrounds of the rich and fabulous. Pierre Salvadori's charming confection plays cupid with a lowly waiter and a label-obsessed gold digger, played by Audrey Tatou (pictured). ★★★

The new Audrey: Audrey Tatou tries her darned hardest to look like her namesake in Priceless

PROM NIGHT (15): Nelson McCormick's frenzied teen thriller suffers from a curious aversion to blood and gore and struggles to earn its 15 certificate. In short, Prom Night won't be giving anyone sleepless nights. ★★

GONE BABY GONE (15): This hard-hitting thriller, about the abduction of a four-year-old girl, was scheduled for release last December, but postponed due to similarities to the Madeleine McCann case. Ben Affleck's directorial debut is a sharply scripted, riveting tale of corruption and twisted love. The narrative wrong-foots us to the closing frames, when one character faces an agonising moral dilemma that will provoke heated debate for weeks to come. ★★★

SUPERHERO MOVIE (12A): This tongue-in-cheek romp of good versus evil takes half-hearted jabs at Spider-Man, X-Men, Superman and Fantastic Four, among others. There's no escaping the fact Superhero Movie far exceeds its sell-by date and should be flung into the nearest dustbin. ★★

MONGOL (15): Kazakhstan's entry for this year's Academy Awards as Best Foreign Language Film is an epic chronicling the rise of Genghis Khan from orphaned boy to bloodthirsty leader of men. Mongol may not sound lap-pealing – a two-hour, subtitled history lesson – but Russian filmmaker Sergei Bodrov knows how to engage his audience. ★★★

SEX AND THE CITY: The film version unwraps almost two-and-a-half hours of fabulous couture, sassy girl talk, toned naked men, breathtaking New York City locations and relationship woes to give your waterproof mascara a stern test. If, however, you are not au fait with the vacillations of author Carrie Bradshaw and her pals, then Michael Patrick King's film will be as appealing as horizontal stripes on a beer gut. ★★★

Polished Boot

With all the banter that usually flies around between Brits and Aussies, it is somewhat refreshing to hear Oz comic Benny Boot profess his love for us Poms – and the London-based stand-up is sincere.

Having moved from his native Queensland four years ago, Boot reveals, "My girlfriend is a dancer and she wanted to come to the UK. I took the moral high ground saying, 'I'll do it for you'."

"But, when I got over here, I realised London is a great place. The comedy is way more intelligent than in Australia. There are some good comics back home but it's mainly knob and drug gags."

Boot stumbled into the world of stand-up after an impromptu routine during his school days, which would no doubt have gone down well on these shores: "I just started making fun of the Germans. I think people enjoyed it!"

The Aussie, now based in Islington, admits he found it difficult to break into the comedy scene over here. But he has a simple mantra that, "if you have any sort of talent, you will eventually work your way up. It is all about grafting."

Now a rapidly emerging talent, Boot took time to fire some answers to our questions.

SF: Who is your favourite stand-up of all time?

BB: Definitely Mitch Hedberg. He was real on stage as well as offstage and was

COMEDY:
Benny Boot, Fighting Cocks, Kingston

Simon Fitzjohn

basically a genuine good guy.

SF: What's the best heckle you have heard?

BB: Some guy commented to me about his northern Irish accent and I said: "I especially liked it when I'm in a government building and it's on the other end of the phone." He said: "You have three minutes to get off stage!"

SF: What sketch would you have liked to have written?

BB: The Mighty Boosh 'pie sketch' – absolutely hilarious.

SF: What would you cook the Queen for tea?

BB: I have a Taste Of London card which gives me 50 per cent off some restaurants so she could take her pick!

SF: Do you have any secret talents?

BB: I can do a good baby noise but that's pretty crap, isn't it?

The Royad Horror show

There will be spooky goings-on at the CornerHouse this weekend when ROYAD Goldenkey Theatre company unleashes its comedy chill-fest, CornerHouse of Horrors, writes Simon Fitzjohn.

ROYAD, the Reach Out Youth and Disability group, will be putting on their second show in as many years after previously thrilling locals with their version of West Side Story.

The show is a massive undertaking for the group, who all have mild learning disabilities. And director Julia Manning agrees their enthusiasm is inspirational: "I have worked with them for six years.

"The group put on an amazing show with West Side Story with not a dry eye in the house but their enthusiasm and talent have surpassed even my expectations."

Loosely fitting around Little Shop of Horrors, the show is a marked step up from Story's simplistic, sparse set. With puppets, mutant plants and other assorted props filling the stage, it is a song-packed, comedy-filled showcase of the group.

And Manning reveals the performance has a major impact on the lives of those involved: "Putting on a show is more than just a bit of fun as it helps develop them in so many ways as individuals."

"Line learning, singing and speaking on stage are all life skills which will help them develop their confidence but, most importantly, they have a lot of fun in the process."

And the audience can expect to reap the benefits of that fun when the show commences, as Manning explains: "Their singing and acting skills have improved even more and will hopefully amaze audiences with the energy and passion they have for this show. I am proud to be a part of this group."

The other fab four

Juke-box giants (l-r): Michael Williams, Steve V King, Maurice Canon, and Christophe Richards

More than 50 hit singles, at least 14 million singles sold worldwide, and in excess of 114 million albums sold globally.

All are impressive statistics but perhaps the most startling figure in the Drifters' illustrious 55-year lifetime is that the group has incorporated more than 55 different singers.

Originally formed in 1953, the band was shaped under the tutelage of Ahmet Ertegun and George Treadwell, who put forward the name of the Drifters as a way of characterising the here today, gone tomorrow attitude to the line-up.

Over the years, vocalists such as Ben E King, Rudy Lewis and Charlie Thomas spent stints in the band, producing such classic tracks as Under the Boardwalk, Saturday Night at the Movies, There Goes My Baby, and many more.

One current member, Steve V King, explains how he got to make his mark in musical history.

GIGS:
The Drifters, Rose Theatre, Kingston
Simon Fitzjohn

He says, "I was in the American military for about 10 years and, while I was there, played the piano and got to work on the stage shows that travelled around for the troops."

"I stayed in music after I left the military and saw an audition vocalist so I went along."

"I knew a guy who had been with the Drifters and, at the audition, I got to meet Tina Treadwell (daughter of George) — then I just got lucky."

King has been with The Drifters for close to four years and admits he is relishing his time as part of the legendary line-up.

And, with a new album on the horizon, he is quick to brush aside any talk of merely cashing in.

He adds: "I was aware of a number of Drifters acts doing the rounds so I asked what made them different."

"Tina was quick to explain it was her father who set up the band and that we are a continuation of the band."

"It is exciting — I'm not part of a tribute act, I am part of the Drifters legacy."

The current show is a glossy mix of music both new and old and previously unseen archive footage.

And the Miami-based singer reveals there is a lot of pressure to contend with: "There is a lot of history and there are a lot of songs to learn."

"They are always trying to keep the image of the group going so they never lose 'the look'. But it does make you nervous that you could be the one who may be replaced!"

The Drifters, Rose Theatre, June 15, 7.30pm, £10/£15/£20, 0871 2301552.

A classical odyssey

Packing five centuries and four countries-worth of classical music into one 90-minute show may seem like a tall order but Kingston Chamber Orchestra are certainly up for the challenge.

Their summer showcase, to be held at Kingston Parish Church on June 14, will attempt just that, with Brahms' Concerto For Violin and Cello In A Minor taking centre stage.

Guest musicians Lesley Shrigley Jones and Jonathan Strange will team up for the Brahms opus, both major players on the local classical scene.

Lesley (cello) will be making her third KCO appearance and has enjoyed a successful career which has included appearances on TV and radio.

Currently, she is collaborating with

CONCERTS:
Kingston Chamber Orchestra, Kingston Parish Church
Simon Fitzjohn

talented pianist Yekaterina Lebedeva in an ongoing concert series entitled Fusion.

Strange (violin) has travelled a varied journey through the world of music, having not only co-led the London Mozart Players but also dabbled in rock and pop by working with, among others, Joni Mitchell and Tori Amos.

Aside from the Brahms centrepiece, the concert will also include Bantock's Old English Suite, Mozart's Paris Symphony (No 31) and Kodaly's Marosszek Dances, a 20th century twist on Romanian dances.

As ever, the Kingston Chamber Orchestra will be conducted by Andy Meyers, head of music at Sutton's Homefield School.

And for organiser Pauline Mansfield, Meyers' light-hearted introductions to the pieces are worth the admission price alone.

She says: "He has great banter with the audience and makes it very enjoyable."

"He is not one of those dry, boring types, like a lot of conductors. He is very witty but informative."

"Kingston Parish Church is a beautiful setting and we expect a wonderful concert."

Kingston Chamber Orchestra, Kingston Parish Church, Sat, June 14, 7.30pm, £7/£10 (inc. programme and wine).

BECOME A MULTI-SKILLED ENERGY ASSESSOR AND HOME INSPECTOR

From 1st October all commercial properties being sold or let and all homes being rented out will start needing an Energy Assessment carried out by a newly qualified Energy Assessor. All homes being sold already require them. In total over 3 million properties will need to be visited in the first 12 months by thousands of new and already qualified Assessors. Homes can also already have optional Home Condition Reports carried out by less than 1,000 currently certified new Home Inspectors with over 7,000 more being needed if Government confirm these Reports are also compulsory.

Applicants are therefore required now to train to become multi-skilled Assessors and Home Inspectors in their spare time. No previous surveying experience is required.

£60 to £80 is currently being paid for each domestic Energy Assessment and the same is expected to be paid from October for each of the estimated 1.8 million rented properties. Several times these fees are expected to be paid for the more extensive commercial Energy Assessments. £200 to £300 is already being paid for each Home Condition Report. Up to 15 domestic Assessments or 6 commercial Assessments or 6 Reports are estimated to be carried out in a week, subject to size of properties and supply.

You could become one of these new multi-skilled Energy Consultants and Home Inspectors and start an exciting new professional career with potential multiple income streams as a result of all this new legislation. Full training is available for selected applicants at our nationwide training centres which are approved by the Government appointed Awarding Body for the Built Environment.

Personal Bankers

£20,000-£27,800 potential OTE + outstanding benefits
Opportunities available throughout the local area

Strange as it may seem, you don't need financial services experience to be a Barclays Personal Banker. Getting to grips with customers' individual needs is a skill you could just as easily have gained in something like retail, hospitality or travel. It's true, ours is a complex market, both in terms of the products we provide and the regulations that govern them, so you do have to have a good head for figures. But we'll support you every step of the way with a good mix of formal and on-the-job training. Most important are pin-sharp customer focus and a natural talent for building client relationships. Bring us that and you can look forward to rewards that go way beyond the excellent OTE. Our package includes a generous contributory pension scheme, special discounts on Barclays products and a wide range of health and wellbeing benefits. We also like to recognise our achievements as a team and individually, with regular celebratory dinners and trips away for our top performers. The long-term prospects are pretty impressive too. As well as being the perfect stepping-stone to a career in branch management, this role could lead to any number of opportunities elsewhere across the Barclays Group.

To find out more, visit www.barclays-jobs.com/retail or call our recruitment line on 0845 602 6234 to apply.

In addition to these, we also have opportunities available on a national scale. Please see our website for further details.

We'll judge you on your ability and nothing else.

More thunder from down under

The Monaro is dead but there's no need to get all maudlin. Vauxhall has followed up with the VXR8, a car that offers all the rawness of the Monaro with a little added practicality. Andy Enright reports

Remember all the best bits of the old Vauxhall Monaro performance coupé? You know, the power, the pace, the keen value and the no-nonsense rear wheel drive chassis. Then add a more civilised body and the option of an automatic gearbox.

The result is its successor, the VXR8. Sophisticated it most certainly isn't. Fun? Oh yes.

More's the shame that this car hails from Australia rather than the UK. A look under the bonnet of the VXR8 is enough to pacify those who thought this car might have gone soft. Pop the hood and you'll find that the old 6.0-litre V8 used by the Monaro VXR is now a 6.2-litre unit developing 431PS.

Features like high-flow cylinder heads, new pistons and an enhanced valvetrain mean that power is up by 14PS over the first 6.0-litre VXR8 models that initially hit our shores late in 2007.

This translates to a reduced 0-60mph time for cars with automatic transmissions (down from 5.0 seconds to 4.9) and improved in-gear acceleration for manual models (50-70mph in third gear drops from 2.8 to 2.6 secs; 30-50mph in second gear drops from 2.0 to 1.9 seconds). And if you fancy smoking your VXR8 at a track day, you'll see 80-100mph times fall from 4.3 to just 4.0 seconds in 4th gear.

Despite the VXR8's enhanced performance credentials, this 'LS3' version produces the same emissions and fuel consumption as the first VXR8's 'LS2' unit.

In addition, the VXR8 automatic receives a transmission oil cooler as standard.

The biggest difference between the VXR8 and its predecessor, the Monaro VXR, is an extra pair of doors. Whereas the Monaro was a big coupé, the VXR8 offers the added bonus of a pair of rear doors. The cabin is relatively airy with a decent amount of space in the back, and a beautiful set of front sports seats. Even the boot is decently sized.

The £35,695 that Vauxhall is asking for the VXR8 doesn't seem too bad at all.

The VXR8 still represents a hefty investment in a Vauxhall but if you're more interested in what the car can do rather than what your neighbours think of you, the VXR8 could well prove a very tempting investment.

TINDALL ON TARGET FOR GREAT BRITAIN IN SPAIN

yourlocalguardian.co.uk

Gibbs the star of Swiss show

Kingston pupil Thomas Gibbs has continued his impressive record in men's gymnastics by winning the Rheintal Cup in Switzerland.

This was only the second international competition for the 14-year-old, and he took on and beat gymnasts up to two years his senior as part of the British team.

Thomas, who is coached by Louis Samms at Heathrow Gymnastics Club, won the pommel horse, came second on the rings and was third on the parallel bars.

He wowed the crowd with his rings dismount, a double backward somersault with full twist.

The son of two classical concert violinists, he is in the Young Hopefuls National Squad for Men's Gymnastics and is an early contender for the 2012 London Olympics, although he is expected to peak four years later.

Malden foiled

Superb batting from Laurie Evans (116) and David Gorrod (90) was not enough to secure victory for Malden Wanderers against Cobham Avonians in the Surrey Championship Premier Division on Saturday.

Malden won the toss and opted to bat, compiling a competitive 265-6 in 63 overs.

Despite two wickets apiece for Neil Mander and Glenn Stockden, Wanderers were thwarted in their efforts to bowl out Avonians, who finished on 191-8.

Wanderers claimed four points for the winning draw to stay within a point of second-placed Sunbury. Next up is a visit to fellow mid-table side Dulwich this weekend.

Turley sets sights on title

Ks on tour: Jason Turley (right) and Ks boss Alan Dowson with Jordon Stokes, 11, Lauren King, 15, and Shannon Leport, 16, at Kingston Hospital. Inset: Dowson and his backroom staff meet Sir Alex Ferguson at Manchester United

Kingstonian midfielder Jason Turley may have taken his time over coming in to the game but, after pitching up at Kingsmeadow last season, he feels at home and is making up for lost time.

The 29-year-old switched from Dulwich Hamlet at the start of the 2006-07 season and helped Alan Dowson's men to an opening run of 11 wins in 16 games.

His luck then took a turn for the worse, breaking his nose and losing a couple of teeth in a 3-2 defeat at Whyteleafe in October, as well as damaging his knee in the same match, an injury that would hinder his box-to-box game for the rest of the campaign.

The Putney-based player did not take up football until he was 15-years-old, but within a year was invited to trial at the then-Championship side Luton Town.

After drifting between the likes of Tooting & Mitcham and Hampton & Richmond Borough, it was not until seven years later that he got his non-League career off the ground with a brief stint at Carshalton Athletic.

by STUART AMOS

samos@london.newsquest.co.uk

Turley said: "When nothing came of the Luton Town trial, I just gave up on football really. "Friends kept banging on at me to give it another go, so I did, but I would spend a week at clubs and think they were taking things too seriously.

"Maybe I was a bit of a hot-head as well but, at the time, it just didn't seem that important to me.

"I regret not getting into the non-league scene earlier because I think I could maybe have got somewhere with it.

"I may come across as a bit of a reluctant footballer, but that is not the case.

"Ks is a fantastic place. It is a big club, I am enjoying it again and want to stay here as long as I can."

Dowson has long believed that had IT manager Turley played more last season, Ks probably would have made the play-offs.

Turley, who joined his manager on a special visit to Kingston Hospital last week, believes the acquisition of central defender Max Hustwick makes the club title contenders this time around.

"We had as good a squad as any team in the division last year and we should have got in to the play-offs," he said.

"We really needed a ball-playing centre-half last year and Max is one of the best around.

"We can beat anyone and I think a top two finish is a realistic target."

SPORTSbrief

TENNIS: Niagara Falls native Frank Dancevic defeated big-serving South African Kevin Anderson to claim the Surbiton Trophy men's singles title, then won over the crowd by staying on court for a further 30 minutes to have a hit with young club players. British number one Anne Keothavong was beaten in the women's decider by Marina Erakovic of New Zealand.

Full details: yourlocalguardian.co.uk

ROWING: There was a mixture of success and frustration for Kingston Rowing Club at the National Schools Regatta in Nottingham. The girls' J15 double scull of Roxana Ayling and Ellie Warner won a bronze medal and J14 double crew Tom Hoskin and Lester March narrowly missed out on a place in the final. But the weather deteriorated on day two of the three-day regatta, meaning Kingston's other four boats did not get to race.

TRAMPOLINING: Trampoline gymnasts from Kingston Trampoline Academy are in final preparations for the British finals next month. Cassidy Weitz, Ross Harding and Alice MacAulay will compete for Kingston in the London Youth Games next weekend. Emma Britton flies to Portugal to represent Great Britain in the Four Nations competition and twins Andrew and Michael Freeman will be representing Great Britain at the Swiss World Cup.

Full story: yourlocalguardian.co.uk

HOCKEY: Surbiton stars James Tindall (pictured top right) and Rob Moore both scored in Spain last week to help earn two morale-boosting draws as Great Britain continued their Olympic preparations with two matches last week.
